Dear [Name],

Financial problems have reached epidemic proportions in the U.S., with impact on all aspects of people's lives. One of the main causes is the lack of personal finance education. Our kids graduate from high school lacking the knowledge they need to support their basic needs and become self-sufficient, contributing society members.

That's why we've launched a campaign to promote mandated personal finance education in U.S. public schools. The end goal is to help youth gain the skill sets they need to make real-world financial decisions and become self-sufficient.

If you believe personal finance is a life skill that must be taught in school, sign the petition at TeachFinancialLiteracy.org. The petition encourages policymakers to mandate financial education in public schools. We hope to gather enough signatures to give advocates a platform where their voices can be heard.

We commend your interest in promoting financial wellness, and look forward to hearing from you.
